

Magdi Gregurich

The amazing variety of shape, pattern and colour found in close observation of nature inspires me to draw and paint both with the eye of an artist and that of one fascinated by the biology of each species and what place it occupies in the cycle of life.

My aim is to paint works that create an appreciation for the beauty of our local environment. Hopefully this will inspire the viewer to pause and observe with new insight the unique splendour of all living things under our stewardship.

The focus of my exhibited work has been the detailed portraits of ten of the 'Butterflies of the Tweed'. My current project is a series entitled 'Glimpses of the Forest Floor'.
